

Carolyn McCaskill-Emerson (standing) reviews activity ideas for Black History Month on Kendall Green with planning committee members.

Black History Month activities slated

Carolyn McCaskill-Emerson, coordinator of Minority Achievement and Multicultural Programs at Pre-College, is literally stepping with energy about the Black History Month celebration planned for Kendall Green in February.

On request, she will gladly demonstrate a step dance—a common tradition in fraternities and sororities at predominantly black colleges. “It’s a big thing in black culture,” said McCaskill-Emerson, who is co-chairing the Black History Month Committee with her sister, Sharrell McCaskill, an administrative secretary in the Department of Athletics.

“What we’re trying to do is provide entertainment, education, and cultural enrichment for the Gallaudet community,” McCaskill-Emerson said.

The national theme of this year’s Black History Month is “African-American Scholars, Leaders, Activists and Writers.” The month begins at Gallaudet with an assembly on Feb. 1, from 10-11:30 a.m. in Elstad Auditorium. The intended speaker, as yet unconfirmed, is Marita Golden, who wrote A Woman’s Place and Migrations of the Heart.

Next will be a teleconference, “Beyond the Dream V: The Writers, the Stories, the Legacy,” on Feb. 3 from 1-3 p.m. in Elstad Auditorium. Writers will include Golden, Terry McMillan, Nicki Giovanni, Charles Johnson, and Houston Baker, president of the Modern Language Association. The conference is dedicated to Alex Haley, author of Roots, who died last year.

Black women will be well represented throughout the month of activities. Women writers will be included in the teleconference, and there is a tentatively planned one-woman show by Evon Black, coordinator of student activities in the Technical Studies Department at the Northwest

Campus. “But we will also focus on men, because we feel it is time to address the issues and concerns of our black men,” McCaskill-Emerson said. The committee hopes to have a panel discussion on the image of black men.

Although the Black History Committee is interested in portraying the diversity of the black community, there are no events planned that cover the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community. “In the black deaf community, it hasn’t been brought out into the open,” McCaskill-Emerson said.

“I hope [black participants] will learn to appreciate their own culture,” McCaskill-Emerson said of Black History Month. “If they’re not black, if they don’t know much about us, then I hope that these activities will increase their awareness level, that they’ll learn something new about our heritage.”

Events that were confirmed at the time this article went to print include: Feb. 1, keynote speaker and reception, 10-11:30 a.m., Elstad Auditorium; Feb. 3, “Beyond the Dream V: The Writers, The Stories, The Legacy” teleconference, 1-3 p.m., Elstad Auditorium; book signing with Ernest Hairston (TBA); African American Art Display (TBA); book signing with Omar Tyree (TBA); a lecture, “Black/Deaf America,” by McCaskill-Emerson (TBA); and a fashion show (TBA).

Other planned events include a panel discussion on black men; a hair show; a black health fair; a Afro-aerobic session; Soul Food Day; two Afro-centric tours of D.C.; two one-woman shows; an arts and crafts sale; a step show; a performance of the play “I Didn’t Hear that Color,” written by Bob Daniels; and the Black Student Union’s annual Quarter-A-Thon for the Linwood Smith Scholarship Fund and bake sale.

Gallaudet forms Division of Academic Support and Student Development

In a move to endorse and coordinate Gallaudet’s growing number of academic activities that take place outside the classroom, a new Division of Academic Support and Student Development went into operation Jan. 1. The division is headed by former Dean of Student Affairs Howard Busby, who serves as vice president.

The division was created, said President I. King Jordan, to emphasize the importance of both academic support programs and traditional academic programs. Another reason, said Dr. Jordan, is that when a chief academic officer is hired, he or she will be better able to concentrate on academic leadership and programs. The Division of Academic Affairs and the Division of Academic Support and Student Development will work closely together, according to Jordan.

Jordan noted in a memorandum to Academic Affairs faculty and staff that the number of academic support programs—the Honors Program and Experiential Programs Off Campus, for example—that exist outside the classroom have served a key role in enhancing the education of Gallaudet students. However, services are often duplicated because departments are unaware that similar services from other campus units already exist.

An additional problem, noted by an evaluation team of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools in its 1991 reaccreditation report on the University, is that students are often confused about which service to contact or are unaware that many support programs exist. One of the purposes of the new unit is to minimize this confusion or lack of information.

The Division of Academic Support and Student Development is charged with developing cohesive academic support services and student development programs, and to work with Academic Affairs on interactive and collaborative programs.

Jordan said the decision to reorganize academic programs was also influenced by the need to redefine the role of the University’s chief academic officer.

“A number of faculty, staff, and administrators whom I consulted believe that the span of responsibility

Temporary parking measures in place

Gallaudet President I. King Jordan has reallocated 40 spaces on the lower level of the Field House parking garage to students for the spring semester only.

The University’s Parking Committee recommended the change after a Department of Safety and Security (DOSS) survey of parking patterns at the garage showed that the lower level parking spaces, previously designated for faculty and staff vehicles, were not being fully used.

Allowing these additional on-campus parking spaces for students will temporarily minimize the need for students to park at the Sixth Street overflow lot. Drivers have expressed concerns that parking at the overflow lot poses a safety hazard for them because there are no pedestrian crossing lights, and because their vehicles are an easy target for theft and vandalism.

1992: The Year in Retrospect

Editor's note: From the renovation of College Hall to the unveiling of the official portrait of President I. King Jordan, 1992 was an eventful year at Gallaudet. The following list highlighting events that took place at Gallaudet or involved the University community last year was compiled by the Office of Public Relations.

January

- KDES earns the first computer award by Giant Food Stores with the "Apples for Students Plus" campaign. More than $160,000 in green cash register receipts are collected for KDES.

- Alexander Nazarov, president of the Russian Association of Deaf Artists, accepts artist residency at Gallaudet.

- Dr. Margarete Hall becomes vice president for Development.

- Provost Harvey Corson announces the formation of the Task Force on American Sign Language and Deaf Studies. Drs. Yerker Andersson and William Stokoe are named co-chairs.

- Igor Abramov, president of the Moscow Society of the Deaf and vice president of the All-Russian Society of the Deaf, speaks on politics in Russia and the condition of deaf people there.

- In support of President I. King Jordan's issues on communication, the Northwest Campus adopts a new evaluation process for instructional communication skills where instructors can be evaluated on a voluntary basis for in-class communication ability.

- Gallaudet celebrates IBM Appreciation Day Jan. 28 by kicking-off Project Common Ground, a joint venture between Gallaudet and IBM, which donated and set up three new computer labs where faculty, staff, and students interact.

February

- Black History Month is celebrated at Gallaudet with many events, including a keynote address by Randall Robinson, executive director of Trans-Africa.

- A Metrobus rams into Gallaudet's 100-year-old stone wall near the Eighth Street entrance, making it the second time in three years that the wall is damaged.

- The Washington, D.C., chapter of the Association of Late-Deafened Adults is formed and holds its first meeting at Gallaudet.

- Five MSSD students in an Introduction to Communication class teach deaf awareness to employees at the Florida Avenue Hardee's restaurant. Today, the restaurant's drive-through window has a doorbell mechanism and a TDD has been installed.

- The Board of Trustees approves a sign communication policy, part of the overall Sign Communication Proficiency Program, regarding staff employees' sign language skill and defines conditions of employment for staff hired after March 1, 1992.

- The Academic Bowl team competes for the first time with 20 other teams in the National College Bowl Association at Towson State University in Maryland.

March

- In his annual State of the University Address, Dr. Jordan stresses recruitment and retention as top priorities for the coming year. Jordan emphasizes that ethnic and cultural sensitivity is essential: "We must be responsive to [students'] needs, respectful of their cultures and their language choices."

- Senator Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), a strong supporter of the University and issues related to disabled people, chooses Gallaudet to announce his withdrawal from the presidential race.

- The Capital Athletic Conference names Kathryn 'Kitty' Baldrige, women's basketball coach and assistant professor in the Department of Physical Education and Recreation, women's basketball Coach of the Year.

- A Women's Issues Fair is held in Ely Center, featuring information booths on women's issues and exhibitors from on and off campus.

- More than 250 people attend the Gallaudet Community Relations Council's 13th Annual Awards Program at MSSD. Neighborhood resident Flava Conley is crowned "Ms. Trinidad" for her extensive service to the community.

April

- The School of Communication hosts its annual awards ceremony, highlighted by a tribute to the 35-year career in deaf theater of retiring Theatre Arts Professor Gilbert Eastman.

- Sign Communication Associate Professor Willard Madsen is honored with the Tower Clock Dedication.

- For the first time, 10 Gallaudet students join Delta Sigma Theta, a national black sorority.

- "The Bridge," written and directed

- Gallaudet's Television Department, a unit within the Department of TV, Film, and Photography, is presented the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' special Board of Governors Award along with two Emmy awards.

- Dr. Jordan receives Self Help for Hard of Hearing's (SHHH) Walter T. Ridder Award. The award, named in memory of the founding member of SHHH, is given to an individual or organization for national contributions to promote better understanding of hearing loss.

July

- The official portrait of President Jordan, commissioned by the Laurent Clerc Cultural Fund and painted by deaf artist William Sparks, is unveiled at the Alumni Association's 34th Triennial Reunion. Honored at the reunion banquet are Dr. Gerald "Bummy" Burstein, '50, Roberto Wirth, '74, John Davis, '37, and Joe Dannis, '78.

- Students in Dr. Mary Malzkuhn's "Political Parties" class attend the Democratic and Republican National Conventions.

- College Hall is rededicated 114 years after it was first built; the President's Office moves to the historic building.

- Dr. Don Bangs becomes chair of the TV, Film, and Photography Department.

- Nancy Bloch, director of Gallaudet's Management Institute, becomes the first female executive director of the National Association of the Deaf.

- Dr. Roslyn Rosen, dean of the College for Continuing Education, is re-elected to her second term as president of the National Association of the Deaf.

- Carolyn McCaskill-Emerson, Pre-College Program's coordinator of minority and multicultural affairs, is interviewed on "Good Morning America" about the new ADA video produced by the National Academy.

- Toward Effective Public School Programs for Deaf Students: Context, Process, & Outcomes is published. Editors include Drs. Donald Moores and Thomas Kluwin from the Gallaudet Research Institute.

August

- Dr. William Moses, chair of the Theatre Arts Department, is named acting dean of the School of Communication for the 1992-93 academic year.

- Senior Andrea Shettle establishes the International Deaf Education and Advancement Fund to educate potential deaf leaders from developing nations with a $10,000 endowment.

- Through Experiential Programs Off Campus (EPOC), biology major Audrey Hill breaks new ground for deaf people in the health field as an emergency medical technician with the Bladensburg (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department.

- The Northwest Campus community participates in workshops to create greater sensitivity to diversity.

- Fire strikes MSSD House 400, where MSSD Student Life Director Wilton McMillan and his family reside. No one was injured. The campus sets up a fund for the family.

- Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas meets with five students participating in the Jeffrey I. Saloshin Seminar for the Study of Criminal Justice, sponsored by EPOC.

- Mary Johnstone, a senior writer/editor in the Department of Publications and Production, and Gallaudet Today magazine win the EDI (Equality, Dignity, and Independence) Award from the National Easter Seals Society for Johnstone's story, "The Silent Majority: Deafened Adults," in the Winter 1991-92 issue.

September

- New student enrollment at Gallaudet for the 1992-93 academic year is up 44 percent from the previous year. Of the 620 new students coming to Northwest Campus and Kendall Green, Stephen Nasukiewicz, 16, is the youngest, and David Heine, 71, is the oldest.

- A story on the English Language Institute appears in the New York Times, followed by coverage of Hispanic students at ELI on the Univision television network.

- Dr. Deborah Sonnenstrahl, chair of the Art Department and an art instructor here since 1964, is named 1992 District of Columbia Professor of the Year by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

- Gina Oliva, an assistant professor in the Department of Physical Education and Recreation, is pictured in the September issue of Self magazine in an advertisement profiling women who have achieved unique goals.

- Nigel Patrick "Paddy" Ladd, co-founder of the National Union of the Deaf in London, England, is named Gallaudet's Powrie V. Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies for 1992-93, becoming the first deaf person outside the North American continent to hold the position since it was established in 1971.

- Gallaudet observes Hispanic Heritage Month with the theme, "Continuation of the Culture: Combining Past and Present Hispanic Culture."

- The Gallaudet Research Institute, the American Deafness and Rehabilitation Association, and the University of California, San Francisco, Center on Deafness produce Mental Health Services for Deaf People, a comprehensive directory with information on more than 350 mental health programs and services for deaf people in the United States.

- The Task Force on ASL and Deaf Studies recommends that all students who enter Gallaudet as freshmen next fall be required to take two courses in deaf studies. Other recommendations include establishing a deaf studies program at Gallaudet; recognizing the study of the language, diversity, culture, and community of deaf people as a valid discipline; and creating a separate unit for this discipline.

October

- Provost Harvey Corson becomes vice president for Pre-College Programs.

- "Shirley Valentine," starring Freda Norman, is performed in Elstad Auditorium, with Ed Waterstreet as artistic director of the production. Both are Gallaudet alumni.

- AT&T presents a Leadership Gift totaling $750,000 in cash and equipment for the Hall Memorial Building project.

of the provost has been too broad," said Jordan. "Their thinking affirmed my own perception that the chief university academic officer should be able to concentrate on academic leadership, on academic programs, and on the undergraduate and graduate curriculum. At the same time, it is critical that the learning that happens outside the classroom complement and strengthen classroom instruction. For this to continue and be enhanced, the divisions of Academic Affairs and Academic Support and Student Development must work closely together."

Reporting to the vice president will be the directors of three service clusters:

Center for Excellence in Learning and Teaching (CELT), Russell Olson, executive director.

- Academic Advising, including the New Signers and New Student Orientation Programs.

- Experiential Programs Off Campus and the Career Center. These two units are now integrated and directed by Anne Nissen.

- Tutorial Center.
- Writing Center.
- English Tutoring.

- Honors Program.
- Electronic Networks for Interaction.
- Academic Computing.
- Office for Students with Disabilities (formerly Student Special Services).

- Professional Development.

Office of Enrollment Services (OES), Astrid Goodstein, executive director.

- Admissions (undergraduate and graduate).
- International Student Services.
- Recruiting/Retention.
- Registrar.
- Financial Aid.

Student Development, Dr. Stephen Weiner, former director of the Career Center, executive director.

- Student Life.
- Counseling Center.
- University Center
- Health education coordinator.
- Office of Campus Ministries liaison.

Also reporting to the vice president of the new division will be Athletics, which now includes the intramural program, Multicultural Student Services, and the Student Health Service.

Students can park at Field House

The University has taken steps to have the city install a crossing light at the Sixth Street entrance, but the city requires that 120 pedestrians cross a street every hour to warrant having a light installed. According to DOSS Manager Lee Gaskins, the heaviest activity at that location is about 40 pedestrians per hour.

Of the 110 parking spaces available at the overflow lot, as many as 70 are used at a time, said Gaskins. With the temporary parking measure this semester, "there is a great possibility that we could cut the use of the Sixth Street lot in half," he said.

The University cannot permit student use of the Field House garage for longer than this semester because parking will become tighter in May when the West Office building is demolished to make way for the new Conference Center for Training and Development. The demolition will cause the University to lose the front and rear lots now adjoining the building, and the gravel lot on the south side of the Washburn Arts Building.

The Parking Committee will begin meeting in February to develop recommendations to bring to Dr. Jordan for an interim parking plan during the conference center construction, according to Dr. Bette Martin, special assistant for institutional affairs in the President's Office and chair of the Parking Committee.

The long range plan to address parking needs includes the construction of a multilevel parking garage. According to Business Services Director Charles Mann, the architectural firm of Geier, Brown, and Renfrow is presently designing the garage, which would be located beside the Transportation Building. Mann said that although plans are not firm, the garage could have three levels. He said that ground breaking for the project could take place in June 1994, and the garage could open in January 1995.

Obituaries

Ernest Adkins

Ernest Adkins, an accounting technician for the Cashier's Office, died Jan. 16 at D.C. General Hospital from injuries he received in a car accident Dec. 30.

Adkins joined Gallaudet's Custodial Services in 1957 and later moved to a position in the Accounting Office. He was honored for 35 years of service to Gallaudet at the Division of Administration and Business Employee Service Award Luncheon Dec. 18.

"Ernie always had a smile on his face, and he never had a complaint," said Suzanne Baker, accounting manager, who had worked with Adkins for 20 years. "He was a very diligent worker, and we're really going to miss him."

Adkins is survived by a son, Ernest Jr., and a daughter-in-law, Sheila; one sister, Barbara Jones; three brothers, Orlando, Frederick, and Cedric; and several other relatives.

The funeral was held Jan. 22 at Fort Lincoln Cemetery in Brentwood, Md.

Frances Merrill

Frances Bonkemeyer Merrill, wife of the University's fourth president, Dr. Edward C. Merrill Jr., died Jan. 18 in Asheville, N.C., after a long illness.

The Merrills lived in House One from 1969 until Dr. Merrill retired in 1983 and the couple moved to Asheville.

According to a written history of Gallaudet's presidents, "the Merrills loved and were loved by the campus community." Frances Merrill was noted for her interest in Gallaudet history and her efforts to locate original furnishings and antiques for House One.

Frances Merrill received an honorary doctor of laws degree from Gallaudet in 1983. She was a life member of the Gallaudet University Alumni Association and an honorary member of all of the Gallaudet sororities. She also was a life member of the National Association of the Deaf and a member of the President's Committee for Employment of the Handicapped, Quota International, and Questers.

Frances Merrill is survived by Dr. Merrill, four children, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Jan. 21 in North Carolina. Dr. Jack Gannon, special assistant to the president for advocacy, and Linda Jordan represented Gallaudet at the funeral. Memorials in lieu of flowers may be sent to Gallaudet University. Condolences may be sent to Dr. Merrill at Stone-wood, 34 Saunooke Road, Asheville, NC 28805.
